

BOULEVARD TANK 7

There are examples of how Americans take something traditional from Europe and Americanize it. When the Boulevard Brewing Company experimented with variations of a traditional Belgian farmhouse-style beer, the perfect combination of elements came together in the fermentation tank number seven. You can't taste it, but they called the beer after Tank 7. This beer is complex and aromatic with fruity aromas and hop notes. Hint of apple, citrus and banana, and a slight streak of light malt and herbs. Fine bitterness in the aftertaste with a sharp and nice finish.
