

WATUSI ROSÉ

The history of the château puech-haut is intimately linked to that of its founder, Gérard Bru. A man who, after a successful career as an industrialist, decided to leave everything to reconnect with his roots: The lands of Languedoc. This region in southern France was already steeped in history for Gérard. It was on these lands that he was introduced to the vineyard by his grandfather. And it was also here that his father worked as intendant of the École nationale supérieure d'agronomie in Montpellier. It is there, on what was at the time only scrubland and wild olive grove, that he built his dream.

The Watusi Rosé has a pale color, together with notes of fresh berries as well as floral tones. Fruity yet elegant.
